

There was once a wide windswept place, near nowhere and close to forgotten, that was filled with all the things that no one wanted.

Right in the middle was a small house,
with small windows,
that looked out on other people's rubbish and bad weather.

