Activity 1 – Conversation Gerda and the Pigeons

Sitting up in bed, Gerda looked up at the wall. One of the pigeons looked back at her, his head tilted to one side. Suddenly, he spoke.

“We have news for you,” squawked the male.

“Yes, we do indeed.” repeated his lady bird.

“We have seen your friend. Many months ago now.” the male continued.

“You saw Kay?” asked Gerda anxiously. She tried not to raise her hopes.

“Yes. I can recall it well. It was a very sad day for us.” cooed the lady pigeon.

Sadly plumping her feathers the lady bird stared at Gerda, “It was the Snow Queen!” she whispered.

“The snow Queen!” cried Gerda alarmed at what she had heard.

“Yes, she flew past in her sled with a young boy with her. He had brown hair and blue eyes just like your friend.” continued the lady pigeon.

Hanging her head Gerda sobbed. This was terrible news to hear. Kay had been taken by the Snow Queen despite grandma’s warnings.

“Where did they go?” asked Gerda, wiping her tears with her sleeve.

“Why north of course. She always does.” cooed the lady bird.

The pigeons nodded before carrying on, “And she was flying low, very low. So low that as she sped past her icy blast froze our flock. We were the only two to survive.” the male pigeon continued, his eyes filling with tears.

“I’m so sorry, I guess I’m not the only one with a sad story.” she said sorrowfully.
